

Lesson 17 Questions

When placing an image on a webpage, when is it more appropriate to use the

1. background-image CSS property?
2. img HTML element?

Write the css code to add a background image named wrapperGradient.png to a div with an id of wrapper. The image (which is in the same location as the html file) should repeat horizontally but not vertically.

Usually, when adding a gradient for a background image of the body (or any other html element), what color should be used for the background color?

Generally, where should you set the width of an tag?